

DERO's Rankings Report

I mentioned in last week's rendition of this report that if things went just right that everyone could be within a game of first. Sure enough it has happened (thanks to Jeremy falling to Christian late Monday night). With that off of my chest, we are now at the halfway point of the fantasy season and it is safe to say that it's anybody's league to win. These next couple weeks will be truly telling in how this league will shake down. Let's go over some of the big headlines from last week. Our early season losers continue to streak. Both Tino and Christian are on fire. They both picked up wins this week to extend their winning streaks to 3 and 4 games respectively. We also saw that Jordan's roster holes were indeed bigger than Jaylen's in his 118 to 131.56 point loss. In season long news, PGill is the first team to break 1,000 points this season. Pat has now accumulated 1,077.88 points on the season and this means he is averaging 153.98 points per game. This week's Wildcard Rankings of the week look at positional scoring for each team. We'll look at who is getting their points from what positions. These rankings include every position from QBs to kickers. Note that these rankings only look at who started for each team each week and takes the cumulative total then averages it over the seven weeks we have played.

Manager Efficiency Rankings

1. Jaylen (89.74%) +1 rankings change
2. Jeremy (89.22%) +3
3. Tony (88.93%) +1
4. Christian (88.75%) -1
5. Tino (88.56%) +1
6. Pat (88.29%) -5
7. Brandon (87.92%) 0
8. Jordan (85.70%) +1
9. Isaac (85.21%) -1
10. Casey (81.00%) 0

League Average - 87.33%

Efficiency is determined by points scored versus possible points scored.

Clubby League Week 7 Power Rankings

1. PGill (334.008 ranking pts; 4-3 record; 0 rankings change)

- o PGill continues to roll as he picks up another win. Pat's team remains the highest scoring team by a wide margin. He now matches his ranking in the league standings with his ranking in these power rankings. His manager efficiency ranking did take a major hit as he dropped 5 spots but only saw a 1% decrease in actual efficiency. He has one of those teams that is a candidate to run away with this league. It will be interesting to see if his team keeps rolling and remains at the top of the standings.

2. Jeremy (307.448; 4-3; +1)

- o Jeremy reclaims the number 2 spot in the rankings this week after his brutal loss to Christian. The 2.28 point loss last week was the closest loss on the week. Jeremy was one of the biggest risers in manager efficiency rising 3 spots up to number 2 in the rankings. Jeremy's team boasts very strong QB and WR play, but the key to him going on a run will be his RB play. He currently has one of the lowest scoring RB groups at 20.44 fantasy points per game.

3. Caseys Dad (306.269; 3-4; -1)

- o Caseys Dad found a way to get it done against Markakis' Anaconda. Jaylen currently has the weakest RB group who is producing under 20 points per game. Outside of that, he is in the top half of the league in all other major positions (major positions are considered QB, RB, WR, TE). The key for him to become a legitimate force in this league may be to find some upgrades at RB.

4. Players To Be Named Later (301.443; 3-4; +1)

- o This team suffered a tough loss in a game that didn't meet the threshold of a close game but if you followed it, you would know that it was. This is a tough team to analyze. They sit in the middle of the pack or the lower half of the league in everything. The only exception to that being, they have the toughest strength of schedule and have the worst kicker production in the league (of those who are actually playing kickers who score points every week). I think this team has two possible paths to success. The first is that they stay the course and hope that a well rounded roster rounds into form. The second is to consolidate their assets into high value proven commodities. Whichever way Brandon decides to take the team will surely make them an interesting team to follow.

5. My Ball Zach Ertz (297.387; 4-3; +1)

- o The hottest team in the league continues its winning ways. Christian's win this past week is the only close game he has participated in all season. It is coming on the back of one of the strongest RB groups in the league as they rank top 3 in production. My Ball Zach Ertz will look to continue to stay hot and as they have a legitimate chance to go from worst to first in the standings. They may need other parts of the team to contribute outside of the RBs but Christian may be building a real contender.

6. Can Only Go Up (296.720; 3-4; +2)

- o Can Only Go Up has stayed true to their name. Tino's team has shown week to week improvement as they have been rising the ranks the past couple of weeks. The most impressive part is that he has done it in spite of the league's worst QB play. His QBs on the season have produced over 100 less points than the top QB point getter in the league (Jaylen). Aaron Rodgers might be Tino's biggest draft bust of the season. For Tino's run to continue, he may look to solidify the QB position.

He'll be someone to watch out for on the trade market as we head towards the trade deadline.

7. The Stache (292.313; 3-4; -3)

- In a week where nothing went right for Casey, his ranking takes a massive hit. His loss comes at the hands of a team that is now at the bottom of the league in these rankings. He was the lowest scorer on the week at 83.3 points. Like many teams in this league, The Stache has flashed at times but consistency will need to be their calling card if they are to move up in these rankings and in the standings.

8. Mean Machine (290.992; 4-3; +1)

- Tony has one of the most unorthodox strategies in the league. He has yet to make a roster move. In his most recent matchup against the team at the top of these rankings, he chose to play defense on bye, even though he has a vacant bench spot. He still has a winning record that comes against the weakest schedule in the league thus far. We will see if he is able to continue to dance his way through his schedule or if his luck finally runs out.

9. Markakis' Anaconda (288.203; 4-3; +1)

- Last week's battle of the roster holes saw Markakis' Anaconda fall yet again. His struggles continue as he sits below league average in all measured metrics. One thing he can take solace in is the fact that he has a significant advantage at TE. Travis Kelce is one of two TEs that have scored over 100 fantasy points on the season. Jordan's path to success will rely on getting more out of his RBs and WRs. He also desperately needs Lamar Jackson to round back into early season form.

10. The Human CentIpad (284.494; 3-4; -3)

- The Human CentIpad is in a rough spot despite the win this week. They have fallen to the league's new lowest scoring team on the season. Isaac's team has one of the top RB groups in the league but outside of that, every other position group is in the bottom half of the league for their production. For Isaac to climb his way out of this hole, he may have to sacrifice his team strength to get a more balanced attack.

Ranking points are not points scored but is a mathematical formula using normalized points scored, points against, and coaching efficiency.

Positional Breakdowns

QB Production Rankings

1. Jaylen (28.04 Points Per Game from his QB)
2. Jeremy (24.24 PPG)
3. Pat (23.17 PPG)
4. Jordan (22.41 PPG)
5. Tony (22.25 PPG)
6. Christian (15.38 PPG)
7. Brandon (14.61 PPG)
8. Isaac (12.98 PPG)
9. Casey (12.08 PPG)
10. Tino (12.01 PPG)

Fun Fact: The gap between Tony and Christian for the season long totals is nearly 50 points here.

RB Production Rankings

1. Pat (66.86 Points Per Game from his RBs)
2. Isaac (47.91 PPG)
3. Christian (46.43 PPG)
4. Tino (44.06 PPG)
5. Brandon (41.21 PPG)
6. Casey (31.76 PPG)
7. Tony (26.80 PPG)
8. Jordan (24.63 PPG)
9. Jeremy (20.44 PPG)
10. Jaylen (18.33 PPG)

Fun fact: Pat is getting over 300 points more than Jeremy or Jaylen from his RBs this season.

WR Production Rankings

1. Jaylen (59.7 Points Per Game from his WRs)
2. Jeremy (58.26 PPG)

3. Casey (55.23 PPG)
4. Tony (50.14 PPG)
5. Jordan (48.64 PPG)
6. Brandon (47.17 PPG)
7. Christian (45.91 PPG)
8. Tino (42.00 PPG)
9. Isaac (34.96 PPG)
10. Pat (34.46 PPG)

*Fun Fact: The season high for weekly WR output is 90.8 points set by Brandon in Week 2.

TE Production Rankings

1. Jordan (20.97 Points Per Game from his TE)
2. Casey (16.46 PPG)
3. Christian (11.37 PPG)
4. Jaylen (10.49 PPG)
5. Jeremy (10.37 PPG)
6. Tino (8.68 PPG)
7. Pat (8.21 PPG)
8. Brandon (7.24 PPG)
9. Isaac (6.57 PPG)
10. Tony (5.09 PPG)

*Fun Fact: There are only two managers who have gotten over 100 points from their TEs this season. Those managers are Jordan (who has Travis Kelce) and Casey (who has Mark Andrews).

DEF Production Rankings

1. Pat (10.86 Point Per Game from his Defense)
2. Jeremy (10.57 PPG)
3. Tony (10.00 PPG)
4. Brandon (9.71 PPG)
5. Tino (7.29 PPG)
6. Jaylen (7.14 PPG)
7. Casey (6.57 PPG)
8. Isaac (5.57 PPG)
9. Jordan (3.57 PPG)
10. Christian (3.14 PPG)

*Fun Fact: Christian did not get to 10 total points on the season from Defense until week 5. He currently has 22 points from his Defense on the season.

K Production Rankings

1. Pat (10.43 Points Per Game from his Kicker)
2. Casey (9.43 PPG)
3. Tony (8.71 PPG)

4. Jeremy (8.14 PPG)
5. Tino (7.86 PPG)
6. Isaac (7.29 PPG)
7. Christian (7.00 PPG)
8. Jaylen (6.14 PPG)
9. Brandon (5.71 PPG)
10. Jordan (3.43 PPG)

Fun Fact: After Week 7, Jordan ties the streak for most consecutive zeros from a position at 3 straight from his kicker. This ties Tony who got 3 straight zeros from his TE during Weeks 3 through 5.